

Due diligence requires that Petitioner “must show some good reason why he or she was unable to discover the facts supporting the motion before filing the first habeas motion.” In re Boshears, 110 F.3D 1538, 1540 (11th Cir. 1997) (defining due diligence in context of second or successive petition); accord Melson v. Allen, 538 F.3d 983 (11th Cir. 2008) (applying Boshears due diligence definition to 2244(d)(1)(D)), rev’d on other grounds, 560 U.S. ___, 130 S.Ct. 2549 (2010). A mere allegation that Petitioner did not know about the claims earlier is not sufficient. Id. Here, Petitioner points to two new pieces of evidence that he has recently obtained, but he has failed to explain why this evidence could not have been discovered earlier.¹

In sum, Petitioner’s objection has no merit. As the Magistrate Judge correctly concluded, the one-year limitations period began to run on the date judgment became final, 28 U.S.C. § 2244(d)(1)(A), and, thus, the petition is time barred. Therefore, after de novo review, the Court hereby OVERRULES Petitioner’s objections and ADOPTS the Magistrate Judge’s Report and Recommendation.

DONE and ORDERED this the 28th day of April, 2014

Senior United States District Judge

¹The first piece of evidence is a letter from the Alabama Bar Association dated March 31, 2014, confirming that Petitioner’s trial attorney, Vader Al Pennington, has been disciplined 11 times since 1991, including two suspensions, and ending with disbarment in 2010. Clearly, Mr. Pennington’s status has been a matter of public record since at least 2010. The second is a supplemental forensics report dated June 18, 1986, providing analysis of a palm print submitted to the laboratory for identification and identified as Petitioner’s. Petitioner states that he obtained a copy of this document in July 2013 from attorneys who represented him in his state court DNA discovery motion. Petitioner, has provided no explanation as to why he could not have obtained this evidence through discovery at some earlier stage of the state court proceedings, such as one of his six Rule 32 petitions.
